

A rhinoceros bone from Brierton, nr. West Hartlepool and a skeleton of elk (Cervus alces) from Neasham, near Darlington by C. T. Trechmann

From the 'Proceedings of the Yorkshire Geological Society, Vol. XXIV, Part II, 1938,' November 1939.

A fascinating little book about the local finds of these amazing animals in 1938 & 1939. The rhinoceros bone was found in a sand and gravel quarry, the elk in clay and peat cuttings made by the Neasham Brick and Tile Company.

There are photographs and geological descriptions of both.
