

An Inventory of Nonconformist Chapels and Meeting-Houses in the North of England

by Christopher Stell

A useful and well illustrated book for everyone interested in architecture and the history of nonconformity. It would also be a useful book for those of you who are researching family history in the North of England with nonconformist ancestors and want to know more about the chapels and meeting houses they attended.

Organised county by county from Cumberland and Northumberland to Cheshire and the East Riding it records the history of nonconformism in each county and then details the buildings. Photographs, drawings and some floor plans are included. There are clear descriptions of the buildings, their history, memorials, fittings and inscriptions.
